Symposium Origin and Purpose

Young BPW Asia–Pacific Symposium

Founded in 2017, the Young BPW Asia–Pacific Symposium is one of the largest international female leadership Symposium in Asia and the Pacific. As an important international event, it is expected to provide a deeper and broader communication platform, achieve cross–border, cross–field, cross–generation transmission, and bring the power of feedback to the world.

The first Young BPW Asia–Pacific Symposium was held in Singapore; the second in Japan; and the third Young BPW Asia–Pacific Symposium will be hosted by Taiwan. Young female entrepreneurs and leaders from various countries in the Asia–Pacific region gather in Taiwan to discuss global trends from the Asia–Pacific region and jointly bring positive influence and changes to the world.

The epidemic has impacted the lives of everyone in the world since the end of 2019. Women around the world are also contributing to the recovery of the post–pandemic world.

Therefore, we set the theme of this forum as:

“Women in leadership: Thriving In A Post–Pandemic World”

2E & 1C in the post–pandemic era: EDUCATION, ECONOMY, CONNECTION. In–depth discussions from various aspects such as leadership, corporate strategy, technological innovation, art, and education.

Expected participating countries

The participants will come from across Asia and the Pacific region, mainly from the 26 member countries of the Asia–Pacific region of the International Association of Professional Women. In addition, young leaders and entrepreneurs from all over the world are welcome to participate in the event.

Symposium Theme and Topics

Theme :

Women in leadership: Thriving In A Post–Pandemic World

Panel Discussion Session 1

"Smart education. Redefining future education"

A sudden epidemic has brought the most destructive innovation to education, flipping the teaching model and breaking the constraints of time, space and region. It has unexpectedly become an important turning point in global education in recent years. After the epidemic, how to grasp the critical moment of educational transformation and create a new look of smart education? Therefore, with the theme of "Smart Education, Redefining Future Education", an in–depth dialogue will be held to rethink the digital learning opportunities in the post–epidemic era, and combine technology to create a more diverse future education and accommodate more different learning demand, as well as the vision of future smart education and the trend of industrial transformation. With the emergence of multiple possibilities for future education, how the industry, government, and academies plan and think becomes the key.

Panel Discussion Session 2

"Leadership for Change, the Challenge of Women Leaders"

This forum tackles the topic of leadership of the new generation of corporate women in the epidemic era.

Young female entrepreneurs will be—or already are—leaders in their workplaces. However, the outbreak of the epidemic not only brought great changes to the industrial economy, but also accelerated the development of digital technology. Technologies such as NFT (Non–Fungible Token), Web3.0 and Metaverse have attracted market attention. In the face of Web3.0, how should enterprises embrace new technological waves such as Metaverse and turn them into sources of revenue? In addition, the issue of "net zero carbon emissions" for enterprises has become the consensus of countries around the world, and "carbon rights trading" has become the key. What exactly is carbon rights trading? Why will it affect the competitiveness of enterprises? This forum invites relevant experts and scholars from the industry, public sector, and young business leaders to jointly discuss the business challenges that young female leaders in various countries may encounter in the future in the post–epidemic era through brainstorming through cross–generational and transnational exchanges. Change, it's a brainstorming, cross–generational exchange of ideas.

Panel Discussion Session 3

"Cultural connection, a new force in the art industry"

Culture is an important foundation for regional connection and common prosperity.

The development of arts and culture is a fundamental force that creates prosperity and stability, both on an individual and collective level. Intercultural dialogue and connectivity among countries in Asia and the Pacific is an area of growth and room for improvement. The epidemic has caused an impact on international cooperation and interpersonal communication. The world is moving along in a new way. As the global epidemic continues to spread, how can the art and cultural industry bring new strengths to society and implement social practices? And how to play a key role in the work and life of many female young entrepreneurs? The theme of this event is "Cultural Connections, New Forces in the Arts and Culture Industry". From the global, regional, and national perspectives, the corresponding policies for arts and culture cooperation in the post-epidemic era are proposed, and the emerging opportunities they can provide are explained.
